WARM AND COOL COLORS

The Color Theory divides the colors into two categories:
warm colors and cool colors.

The colors are categorized as warm and cool due to the feelings that one gets when looking at them. Color impacts our visual perception of the objects that we see.

What is a warm color?

The phrase warm color is used to describe any color that is vivid or bold in nature. Warm colors feel inviting and comforting, and provide the illusion of heat and warmth. They tend to advance in space.
Warm colors give us the feeling of excitement, action and energy.

> Close your eyes now and think of something that makes you feel excited, active and ready for movement!.... and write it down here

In that image that you are thinking about, what is the main color?

For example: I am sitting in the beach and I look at the sunset.
The main color in that image is Orange

What is a cool color?

The phrase cool color is used to describe any color that is calm or soothing in nature. Cool colors often feel cool and refreshing and remind us of nature. They tend to recede in space. Cool colors makes us feel relaxed, calmed, peace of mind.

> Close your eyes now and think of something that makes you feel relaxed, quiet, in peace .... and write it down here

In that image that you are thinking about, what is the main color?

For example: I am sitting in the beach looking at the horizons line where the sky meets the sea.
The main color in that image is Blue.

Do you have already an idea about which colors are warm and which colors are cool?

Let´s go check in the Color Wheel

let´s paint!!!

Now that we know which are the cool colors and the warm colors, let´s practice and experiment with them painting!

> Prepare the space where you are going to work
> Take your colored pencils, markers, crayons or tempera paints
> Divide the colors into two groups: warm and cool colors
> Create 3 paintings/color drawings:
- A first one using only warm colors.
- A second one work using only cool colors
- A third one mixing both warm and cool colors

you can change the order.

What can I paint?

Whatever you like: a landscape, a character, an object, a portrait, anything you see from your window, anything from your imagination...

Remember!

You can always choose to create something abstract or figurative.
Do you remember we have talked about these ideas before?

let´s talk about it ...

Did you have fun experimenting with the use of warm and cool colors?

Take your 3 drawing (all of them if you did more) and place them together in the table or the floor.
Look at them, take your time, one by one and try to observe what are the feelings or moods that you get with each of them.

You can write them here:

Try to answer this question to yourself

Do you perceive different feelings from each of them? Or there is no difference?

Can you perceive any of the characteristics of the cold colors in your drawing?

Can you perceive any of the characteristics of the warm colors in your drawing?

Can you perceive any difference when both warm and cool colors are combine in the same drawing?

You can show your drawings to your family and ask them what are their emotions or mood towards them.
Everyone has a unique respond looking at a painting or drawing!

In the next (and last page) we have some examples of great artists who used the color to express their emotions and feelings.

- Why don't you look for more examples?
- Why don't you look at the work of your favorite artist to see how they use the color?

VINCENT VAN GOGH (1853-1890)
'Sunflowers', 1888 (oil on canvas)

The paintings of Vincent Van Gogh show an instinctive understanding of the emotive properties of color. In this version of 'Sunflowers' from the National Gallery in London, he uses warm yellows to create an energetic image that radiates feelings of hope and joy.

PABLO PICASSO (1881-1873)
'The Tragedy', 1903 (oil on canvas)

Another effective use of emotive color is found in the paintings of Pablo Picasso. Between 1901 and 1904, Picasso painted in monochrome tones of blue which reflected his low psychological state. This chapter of his work became known as his 'blue period'. In this painting he uses cool blues to evoke the chill of sadness and despair that this family is living,

ANDRÉ DERAIN (1880-1954)
'The Pool of London', 1906 (oil on canvas)

André Derain uses the clash between contrasting warm and cool colors to express the noise and activity of this busy dockyard. He creates the illusion of depth in the painting by using warmer colors in the foreground which gradually become cooler towards the background.
