Today we are going to create faces using recolected objects and materials from around the house. You will see how everything can be transformed into a face when we look with the right eyes.

What materials we need?

It is important to know that we will use these objects to create faces and take some pictures of them. We don't need to glue them or fixed them together, so we can put the objects back where they belong when we finish playing. For this reason we can use any kind of materials that we can find!

The list can be infinite!

> fruits
> kitchen utensils > cups, glasses
> tools
> small objects
> bottle caps
> coins > buttons
> rope, wool, thread
> clips, rubbers,
> pieces of paper or cardboard

Here I show you a picture of the elements (objects and materials) that I selected from around my house.The recicling bins and the toolbox (with consent of an adult) can be really good sources. Remember, this is just an example!

Let's start

To start, we need a piece of paper or cardboard. Can be white or colored. This piece has to be big enough for the size of the objects and materials that you have selected.

With the scissors cut the shape of the face.
The shape can be as you like.

Here there are some examples, you just have to choose one of them.

Over the piece of paper or cardboard that we just cut, we can start placing some of the objects. We look for the elements that can replace a nose, an eye, a mouth... and slowly we start getting many different options of each part.

Some of the objects can be used as a nose, as an eye or as an ear... and every possibility makes the face look different than the one before.

Keep moving the objects, trying as many combinations as you can!
Don't be happy with the first try, keep creating and experimenting.

LOOK !!! This is one of the faces I made!

Observe the differences in the expression of the face when we move the same objects from one position into another one.

For example, if the eyes are more far away from the nose, or very closed to it.
If the forehead is bigger or smaller...

in this other face I am playing with the position of the eyebrows, which are one of the more expressive facial movements.

In one picture the face seems upset or worried...and in the oder one looks more like angry or furious.
What do you think?

I ♥ THE GLASSES

in this face, I just changed the position of the eyebrows, for the moustache.
What a difference, right?

Two more examples of faces.

Remember:

- Try as many objects as you can.
- Change the expression of the face and move the elements around.
- When you finally find the face that you like the most, take a picture!
- Repeat this process as many times you want.

Have a lot of fun!
